

Amara Deeper Dive: developing transformational leadership capacity II, Swindon, UK April 20th, 10am – 22rd, 3pm, 2016

This 3-day workshop is for those who are keen and ready for a deeper exploration of the practice and development of transformational capacity. We will use Action Inquiry as our framework whilst we dive into the practices, concepts and tools that can help us better develop ourselves, and our organizations. The workshop will be particularly valuable for people who have completed our introduction workshop or already have the equivalent understanding of developing transformational leadership,

We offer an inspirational programme that blends the what, why and how of transformational leadership development, including:

- 1) The practices of Action Inquiry in the realms of 1st, 2nd and 3rd person
- 2) The four territories of experience and four parts of speech
- 3) Ways of knowing and being through mindfulness, embodied leadership and the wisdom of the '4th dimension'
- 4) Understanding how our transforming power plays in our relationships and systems

WORKSHOP EXPERIENCE

At our workshop you will never be passively hearing somebody telling you how to do it right. Rather, you will be exercising active listening and leadership, moving among peers in a community of inquiry, receiving direct feedback about your leadership impact, and thereby learning together practical ways to help yourself and others:

- Assess current leadership action-logics – the centre-of-gravity, emergent and fallback perspective that guide action and influences result
- Become conscious of and shift action/mental/emotional habits that are limiting effectiveness
- Exercise personal power with greater flexibility and mutuality to generate personal and organizational transformation
- Develop collaborative practices that increase mindful, relational, and cultural intelligence in the wider organization
- Build capacity to lead from the inside out, confidently responding to the deepest calls of our human nature and the natural world that hold us

“While we can’t predict the future, we can transform ourselves and our organizations to effectively meet it”

– Bill Torbert
